The amendment filed 10 September 2008 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: claim 1 now recites that the pressure exerted by the spring is equal to the delivery pressure of the pump when the distributor is in the rest position, which recitation has no support in the specification..

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The newly added limitation that the pressure exerted by the spring is equal to the delivery pressure of the pump when the distributor is in the rest position has no support in the specification.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3753

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3, 4, and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Coakley. Coakley shows a valve piston where pump forces are opposed by spring 40 and pressure from a load sensing line 47. Orifices 42 provide some communication between pump pressure inlet 42 and reservoir outlet 46.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 3, 4, and 6 are alternatively, and claims 2 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Coakley. It would have been obvious to set any spring biased valve to flow at any given flow rate under any desired pressure, including a setting where there is essentially zero spring bias when the valve is in its rest position.

Claims 5 and 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Coakley in view of Machlanski. Machlanski shows a similar piston with wedge shaped slots on the outside of the piston, which slots are seen as equivalent to Coakley's slots 42. It would have been obvious to replace the Coakley square cut slots with the wedge shaped slots taught by Machlanski to smooth flow and because the wedge shaped slots would have been easier to form (such as by using a triangle file or similar broach).

Applicant's arguments filed 10 September 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. As stated previously, whenever the valve is not abutting an end stop so that it is supported at least partially by that end stop, it is inherent that the spring pressure is equal to the pump pressure. Fig. 3 appears to indicate that 10 bar of pressure is needed to get noticeable flow indicates that the spring provides significant pressure when the valve is at rest.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
